THURSDAY, JUNE 6, 1745.

The Case of the Hon. Brigadier-General Ingoldsby, in Relation to his Conduct in the late Action at Fontenoy.

HE Brigadier represents, that on the Day of the Battle, being the 30th of April, O. S. his Royal Highness sent for him early in the Morning, and told him he was to attack Six Pieces of the Enemy's Cannon, situated in the Wood; and that Capt. Forbes, Aid de Camp to Lieutenant-General Campbell, would show him the Place; who carried him to the Orchard where the Highlanders were posted, and shew'd him the Wood; some of the Officers the Highlanders informed him, that the Enemy had been at the Point of it. On the Brigadier's Return, acquainted the Duke he had been shewn the Place, thinking it was possible for the Person, that was on that Purpose, to mistake his Royal Highness's intentions.

The Brigadier also told his Major of Brigade what was to be done.

The Duke further order'd the Brigadier, if he took Cannon, to turn them upon the Enemy; if he could turn them, to nail them; for which Purpose, some Orders were order'd, and Four Battalions; viz. Du-Roi's Pulteney's, Lord Semple's, and a Hanoverian Regiment; which latter he was to take off from a Post lay at some Distance from the Road, and obliged the Enemy to halt till that Regiment join'd him.

In Obedience to the above Orders, the Brigadier led beyond the Village into a hollow Way, where, within a hundred Yards of the Wood, in order to reconnoitre; and from the Banks of which he observed, that the Enemy had a strong Detachment in the Wood, and at that Juncture were marching several Regiments towards it; particularly one which lay down flat on the Ground, about Forty Yards from the Flank of the Wood; and others, which marched and joined some Regiments on the Hill, near it.

The Brigadier finding the Enemy thus advantageously posted, his Major Bernard to the Duke, to acquaint his Royal Highness, that he thought some Pieces of Cannon would be requisite to flank the Enemy, he marched to the Attack; which the Duke readily complied with, and immediately ordered three Six-Pieces.

After the Brigadier sent Captain Crawford, of the General-Pulteney's Regiment, to acquaint the Duke with what he had observed; during which Time the Brigadier called the Commanding Officers together, and told them what he was to do, and consulted with the properest Way to attack: It was resolved to march upon the Right of the hollow Way, where appeared no Difficulty to hinder our March; and being having it in our Power to flank the Enemy as we marched.

The Brigadier was putting this Disposition in Execution, Capt. Crawford return'd, and immediately the Duke came up. The Brigadier then acquainted his Royal Highness with the Observations he had made, and being then arrived, and on the Left of the hollow Way.

His Royal Highness then order'd the Brigadier to form the Left of the hollow Way, the Cannon to advance first, and the Battalions to march and support them. He then order'd the Brigadier to keep in a direct Line that Part of the Army that was on the Left; and Orders were immediately executed.

The Brigadier apprehends as his Royal Highness alter'd his Disposition, and gave him fresh Orders, which Orders were punctually obeyed; that he cannot be liable to any Charge for Disobedience of Orders.

His Royal Highness some time after returned, and order'd Lord Semple's Regiment to the Attack of the Cannon, which was the whole Day afterwards separated from the Brigadier's Command.

The Brigadier was marching at the Head of the Regiment, in pursuance to the Duke's last Order, he received a Message from General Ligonier by the Aid de Camp, Capt. Amhurst, enquiring the Reason why he had not attack'd, according to the Orders given the Morning; the Brigadier answer'd, that his Royal Highness had since order'd him to march and keep the Line with the Left of the Army.

At the Time after, the Brigadier still marching at the Head of the Regiment, Capt. Napier acquainted the Brigadier that Major-General Zastrow was to command that Part of the Line; but the Brigadier never received any Order from him, neither did he see him.

The Brigadier continued at the Head of Du-Roi's Regiment, within a hundred and fifty Paces of a Redoubt, from which he was exposed to a continual Fire from the Beginning of the Action, which the Loss of that Regiment will make appear; and in the Attack, the Brigadier had the Misfortune to receive a Wound, which obliged him to be carried off.

RICHARD INGOLDSBY.

SCOTLAND.

Edinburgh, May 30. Last Monday died Mrs. ——— Carnegie, Lady Salton, Daughter of Sir ——— Carnegie of Pittarrow, Relict of Henry Fletcher of Salton, and Mother to the Right Hon. Lord Justice Clerk. She was a Lady of exemplary Piety, and was the First who brought over the Pattern of a Harney-mill into this Country; which Work she improved to the highest Perfection. She was also the First who set Hand to the improving, to purpose, our Linen Manufacture; and was happy enough to live till she saw this Nation copy her good Example.

Last Tuesday died Dame Katharine Pringle, Daughter of ——— Pringle of Torwoodlee, and Spouse to Sir Robert Pringle of Strichen, Barr.

Yesterday Morning the Fox Man of War, of 20 Guns, Capt. Beavor, arrived in the Fifth, in order, as supposed, to convoy the London Trade. In her Passage from Holland, she engaged, and took, the Privateer that fought with the Falcon Sloop of War off Flamborough Head. The Privateer mounted 14 Carriage Guns, and 16 Swivels, and had 145 Men. Capt. Ogilvie saw the Privateer in Yarmouth Roads, with the British Colours hoisted above the French. There lay at that Time in the Roads the Yarmouth Man of War, of 40 Guns. The Nelly of Leith, Capt. Joseph Borthwick, with the Peggy and Mary of Borrowstounness, are now in the Road ready to take in the Recruits for Holland. And we hear a Dutch Auxiliary Man of War, of 50 Guns, has Orders to come round, from her Station at Portsmouth, in order to carry them over. Capt. James Ogilvie left Boulogne on Friday last.

COUNTRY NEWS.

Newcastle, June 1. We hear from Hull, that the Glasgow Man of War, of 20 Guns, was launch'd there the 22d ult.

We hear Capt. Harvey, of Newcastle, supposed to be taken, is safely arriv'd at Gottenburgh.

Advice is come, that the Esther, Capt. Bowes, who lately sail'd from this Port with the Transports for Virginia, and the Mary, Capt. Hill, for South Carolina, were taken the 11th of May last by two French Privateers of 30 Guns, and 250 Men each; 12 Leagues off Shetland. Capt. Bowes ransom'd his Ship for 213 l. but Captain Hill was sent to Dunkirk. The above Privateers have taken Seven Prizes since the 8th of last Month.

LONDON.

The Queen of Hungary has sent Letters requisitorial, dated the 10th of May, to the Bishop of Bamberg and Wurzburg, and to the Margrave of Brandenburg Bareith, as Directors of the Circle of Franconia, demanding a Passage for her Troops, and proper Subsistence in their March, to protect the Dyet of Election at Frankfort.

Her Majesty has given the Title, and Rank of a Colonel, to a Gentleman of Braganza, who has assembled near 10,000 Peasants in the Neighbourhood of the Black Forest; who have had Arms given them out of the Austrian Magazines, and are to be employ'd in harassing the French Quarters in the Neighbourhood of Fribourg.

They write from Berlin the 5th of June, that the Marquis de Valori is in perpetual Motion there; and that it is believed there is some new Scheme upon the Carpet, either for reviving the Treaty of Union, or for contriving some new Treaty of the same Kind, for supporting the French Interest in Germany, by hindering the Election of the Grand Duke.

There are Letters from Hambourg, dated the 8th of June, which say, that there was an Action on the 4th in Silesia, to the Disadvantage of the Austrians; which is said to be owing to the Prussians having chosen their Ground, having a great Superiority in Artillery, and their Troops much fresher than the Austrians, who had march'd Five Days together incessantly.

They write from Brussels, that the French King has sent repeated Orders for the March of 12,000 Men from the Moselle into the Netherlands; and that it is believed he will act on the Defensive there during the rest of the Campaign, in order to detach 20 Battalions, and 33 Squadrons, to enable the Prince of Conti to maintain himself in Germany, to prevent the King of Prussia making Peace.

There is Advice from Paris, by the Way of Holland, that the Fleet of Ships bound for the East Indies from Port Orient, that sail'd from thence, in a few Days after met with a violent Storm; in which they receiv'd such considerable Damage, that they are put back into the same Port, and 'tis thought they will not be able to proceed on their intended Voyages this Year.

The George and Eleanor, Capt. Wichal, in her Passage from Oporto, was, on the 15th ult. taken by a French Privateer three Leagues off the Port of Lynn, and carried into Dunkirk.

Last Tuesday Captain Francis Bolton was married to Miss Elizabeth Baker, an agreeable young Gentlewoman, with a handsome Fortune.

The latter End of last Week ——— Graham, Esq. Surveyor of the new Bridge at Westminster, coming to Town from St. Edmund's Bury in the Flying Stage Coach, was robb'd of upwards of 3 l. by a single Highwayman; who likewise took about 30 s. from the Coachman.

Extract of a Letter from Lovell Pennell, Commander of the Exeter Privateer, dated at Lisbon the 30th of April, O. S.

S I R,

We arrived here the 10th Inst. with Two Prizes, bound from Bourdeaux to Martinico. About Five Leagues to the Westward of Cape Ortegal, we fell in with Ten Sail of French Ships, bound to the West Indies, Five of which were the Ships mentioned at Foot; we engaged them for more than two Hours, within half Pistol Shot, and received all their Broadides, and continual Volleys of Small Arms; we returned the same to them, in a smarter manner than they had ever before felt. The Action began exactly at Six o'Clock in the Morning: A little after Eight, the French seeing we were employed in mending our Braces and Sheets, which were all shot away, they made all the Sail they could, and run from us; we then set our Fore-top Sail, and as soon as possible the Main Sail, and the other Sails as fast as we could knot and flice, and get them ready. We remounted three of our largest Guns, the Carriages having given way by continual firing, all which took up Time; however, at Three in the Afternoon, we came up with the Fleet again. The Duke de Penthièvre, a Ship of 180 Tons, 11 Carriage Guns, four Pounders, and 34 Men, struck to us immediately, but it was near two Hours before we could board her; our Launch was shot thro' and thro', and could not swim. At Six in the Evening we came up with the Royal Lewis, which we took, and mann'd instantly, and in doing it sav'd her Boat; the Sea running high, and Night coming on, we lost Sight of the Fleet soon, otherwise we should certainly have pick'd up more. We were now so shattered in our Rigging and Sails, that we were forced to lie to all the Night; and the next Morning we bore away for Lisbon, where we now are in Safety, with our Two Prizes.

In the Action, our Third Lieutenant was desperately wounded; we had several others wounded also. It was next to a Miracle we came off so well.

The following are the Ships that we engaged, as by Information of the Captains and Officers we took:

	Guns.	Men.
The Assumption of St. Malo,	26	150
The La France of St. Malo,	24	100
The Jacob, of Havre,	22	90
The Fort Royal of Bourdeaux,	22	95
One Ship, Name unknown,	18	70

112 507

The Guns were all Six-pounders; the other five Ships were smaller, and did not attack us at all.

This Day Mr. Seller open'd his Coffe-House at the Corner of Mincing-Lane, Fenchurch-Street; where Gentlemen will be accommodated in an elegant Manner. He hopes his Friends will do him the Favour of calling there.
